On May 27, 2014, Bank of America Corporation (the "Corporation") resubmitted its requested capital actions and certain 2014 Comprehensive Capital Analysis and Review ("CCAR") schedules to the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System (the "Federal Reserve"). The Corporation previously announced on April 28, 2014 that it would be resubmitting these 2014 CCAR items following discovery of an adjustment to regulatory capital. A third party was engaged to perform certain procedures related to the Corporation's 2014 CCAR resubmission processes and controls regarding reporting and calculation of regulatory capital ratios, and focused on the periods ended September 30, 2013 and March 31, 2014. The third party review has been completed and resulted in additional adjustments that had a de minimis effect (less than one basis point reduction) on the Corporation's reported regulatory capital ratios for the period ended September 30, 2013, and no effect on such ratios for the period ended March 31, 2014. As the Corporation announced on April 28, 2014, the requested capital actions contained in the resubmission are less than the 2014 capital actions to which the Federal Reserve previously did not object. Pursuant to CCAR capital plan rules, the Federal Reserve has up to 75 days to review the Corporation's resubmitted 2014 CCAR items, including the requested capital actions.

There can be no assurance as to the timing or outcome of the Federal Reserve's review of the resubmitted 2014 CCAR items, including the requested capital actions contained therein.
