Merrill Lynch Announces Substantial Sale of U.S. ABS CDOs, Exposure Reduction of $11.1 Billion

Merrill Lynch Announces Initiatives to Further Enhance Capital Position

NEW YORK--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Merrill Lynch (NYSE: MER) today announced a series of actions to significantly reduce the company's risk exposures and further strengthen its capital position. These actions include:

- Announced substantial sale of U.S. super senior ABS CDO⁽¹⁾ securities, resulting in an exposure reduction of $11.1 billion from June 27, 2008
- Agreement to terminate ABS CDO hedges with monoline guarantor XL Capital Assurance Inc. ("XL") and settlement negotiations with other monoline counterparties
- Plans to issue new common shares with gross proceeds of approximately $8.5 billion through a public offering launched today (excluding a fifteen percent, or approximately $1.3 billion, option granted to the underwriter to purchase additional shares of common stock to cover over-allotments)
- Agreement that Temasek Holdings will purchase $3.4 billion of common stock in the public offering, a portion of which is subject to receipt of regulatory approvals
- Exchange of all of the outstanding mandatory convertible preferred securities for common stock or new preferred securities, which eliminates the reset features in the original securities
- Purchase of approximately 750 thousand shares of common stock in the public offering by executive management

(1) ABS CDOs are defined as collateralized debt obligations comprised of asset-backed securities.

“The sale of the substantial majority of our CDO positions represents a significant milestone in our risk reduction efforts,” said John A. Thain, Chairman and CEO of Merrill Lynch. “Our consistent focus has been to opportunistically reduce risk, and in order to take advantage of this sizeable sale on an accelerated basis, we have decided to further enhance our capital position by issuing common stock. The actions we announced both today and on July 17 will materially enhance the company’s capital position and financial flexibility going forward.”

As a result of the transactions announced today, the company expects to record a pre-tax write-down in the third quarter of 2008 of approximately $5.7 billion. This write-down is comprised of a $4.4 billion loss associated with the sale of CDOs, a $0.5 billion net loss on the termination of hedges with XL Capital Assurance and an approximately $0.8 billion maximum loss related to the potential settlement of other CDO hedges with certain monoline counterparties. In the third quarter, Merrill Lynch also expects to record an expense of $2.5 billion related to its reset payment to Temasek and $2.4 billion of additional dividends as a result of the exchange of certain existing mandatory convertible preferred stock for common stock as described under “Common Stock Offerings and Early Conversion of Mandatory Convertible Preferred.”

Pro forma for the transactions announced today, the sale of our interest in Bloomberg L.P. and the expected FDS transaction, Merrill Lynch’s Tier 1 capital ratio, total capital ratio and adjusted “if-converted” book value per share as of June 27, 2008 would have been 10.5%, 16.6% and $22.21. These figures do not include the impact of any exercise of the approximately $1.3 billion over-allotment option. Please see Attachment II for further details.

CDO Sale:

On July 28, 2008, Merrill Lynch agreed to sell $30.6 billion gross notional amount of U.S. super senior ABS CDOs to an affiliate of Lone Star Funds for a purchase price of $6.7 billion. At the end of the second quarter of 2008, these CDOs were carried at $11.1 billion, and in connection with this sale Merrill Lynch will record a write-down of $4.4 billion pre-tax in the third quarter of 2008.

On a pro forma basis, this sale will reduce Merrill Lynch’s aggregate U.S. super senior ABS CDO long exposures from $19.9 billion at June 27, 2008, to $8.8 billion, the majority of which comprises older vintage collateral – 2005 and earlier. The pro forma $8.8 billion super senior long exposure is hedged with an aggregate of $7.2 billion of short exposure, of which $6.0 billion are with highly-rated non-monoline counterparties, of which virtually all have strong collateral servicing agreements, and $1.1 billion are with MBIA. The remaining net exposure will be $1.6 billion. The sale will reduce Merrill Lynch’s risk-weighted assets by approximately $29 billion.

Merrill Lynch will provide financing to the purchaser for approximately 75% of the purchase price. The recourse on this loan will be limited to the assets of the purchaser. The purchaser will not own any assets other than those sold pursuant to this transaction. The transaction is expected to close within 60 days.

Termination of Monoline Hedges:

In addition to the CDO sale referenced above, Merrill Lynch also agreed to terminate all of its CDO-related hedges with XL and is in the process of negotiating settlements on certain contracts with other monoline counterparties. These short positions were the hedges on long CDO positions that are part of the announced sale.

Merrill Lynch executed an agreement to terminate all of its CDO-related hedges with XL. The transaction is expected to close in early August 2008. When the transaction closes, all of Merrill Lynch's CDO-related hedges with XL will be terminated in exchange for an upfront cash payment to Merrill Lynch of $500 million. These hedges had a carrying value of approximately $1.0 billion at June 27, 2008. As a result of this transaction, Merrill Lynch will record a pre-tax loss of $528 million during the third quarter of 2008.

Merrill Lynch is also in the process of negotiating settlements on certain contracts relating to CDO hedges with MBIA and other lower-rated monolines. If Merrill Lynch were to receive no payments in connection with the settlement of these hedges, the maximum loss Merrill Lynch expects to record would be their current carrying value, $0.8 billion.

The hedges described above had a net notional value of $8.4 billion. To reflect the XL termination and the other potential settlements with other monolines, Merrill Lynch will reduce its U.S. super senior ABS CDO short exposures, or hedges, from $15.6 billion at June 27, 2008, to $7.2 billion on a pro forma basis (see Attachment I for further details).

Common Stock Offering and Early Conversion of Mandatory Convertible Preferred:

Merrill Lynch plans to raise $8.5 billion through the public offering of common stock announced today (excluding a fifteen percent, or approximately $1.3 billion option granted to the underwriter to purchase additional shares of common stock to cover over-allotments). Temasek Holdings, Merrill Lynch's largest shareholder, has committed to purchase $3.4 billion of common stock in the offering, a portion of which is subject to regulatory approvals that are expected to be obtained after the closing of the offering. In addition, Merrill Lynch's executive management team intends to purchase approximately 750 thousand shares of common stock in the offering.

In satisfaction of Merrill Lynch's obligations under the reset provisions contained in the investment agreement with Temasek Holdings, Merrill Lynch has agreed to pay Temasek $2.5 billion, 100% of which Temasek has contractually agreed to invest in the offering at the public offering price without any future reset protection.

In addition, $5.4 billion of the $6.6 billion of outstanding mandatory convertible preferred holders have agreed to exchange their outstanding preferred stock for approximately 195 million shares of common stock, plus accrued dividends payable in cash or stock at the option of the holder. A holder of $1.2 billion of outstanding mandatory convertible preferred has agreed to exchange their securities for new mandatory convertible preferred securities with a reference price of $33.00. The reset feature for all securities exchanged has been eliminated.

The proceeds from the offering, which will be used for general corporate purposes, will significantly enhance the firm's equity capital position. The offering is being conducted as a public offering registered under the Securities Act of 1933, and will be subject to customary closing conditions. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Incorporated is serving as sole book-running manager and underwriter of the offering.
