SUMMARY

The Autocallable Range Accrual Notes Linked to the S&P 500® Index, due September 26, 2027 (the “notes”) are our senior unsecured debt securities. The notes are not guaranteed or insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or secured by collateral. The notes will rank equally with all of our other unsecured and unsubordinated debt, and all payments due on the notes, including repayment of the principal amount, will be subject to our credit risk. Unless earlier called, the notes will mature on September 26, 2027.

During each quarterly interest period, the notes will provide quarterly interest payments at a rate based upon the total number of Market Measure Business Days in the applicable quarterly interest period on which the closing level of the S&P 500® Index is greater than or equal to the Reference Index Strike Level, as described below. The notes will be automatically called on any quarterly interest payment date occurring on or after September 26, 2013 and up to and including June 26, 2027 if the level of the Reference Index is above the Call Reference Level on the applicable Observation Date. If the notes have not been previously called, we will pay to you at maturity the principal amount of your notes plus any accrued and unpaid interest, subject to our credit risk. The notes are not traditional debt securities and, during any interest period, it is possible that the notes will not pay interest or will pay interest at a very low rate.

HYPOTHETICAL INTEREST RATE CALCULATIONS

Set forth below are five examples of the calculation of the interest rate (rounded to two decimal places) payable on any interest payment date during the first five years of the term of the notes. The examples are based on a hypothetical interest period that has 65 Market Measure Business days. These examples are for purposes of illustration only. The actual interest rate for any quarterly interest period will depend on the actual number of Market Measure Business Days in that interest period and the level of the Reference Index on each Market Measure Business Day during that period. The following examples assume that the notes have not been called.

Example 1: There were no Market Measure Business Days during the interest period on which the closing level of the Reference Index was greater than or equal to the Reference Index Strike Level:

Hypothetical N: 0
Hypothetical D: 65
Hypothetical annual rate:  $6.00\% \times 0/65 = 0.00\%$
Hypothetical interest rate payable for that quarterly interest period:  $0.00\% \times 90/360 = 0.00\%$

Example 2: There were 18 Market Measure Business Days during the interest period on which the closing level of the Reference Index was greater than or equal to the Reference Index Strike Level:

Hypothetical N: 18
Hypothetical D: 65
Hypothetical annual rate:  $6.00\% \times 18/65 = 1.66\%$
Hypothetical interest rate payable for that quarterly interest period:  $1.66\% \times 90/360 = 0.42\%$

Example 3: There were 36 Market Measure Business Days during the interest period on which the closing level of the Reference Index was greater than or equal to the Reference Index Strike Level:

Hypothetical N: 36
Hypothetical D: 65
Hypothetical annual rate:  $6.00\% \times 36/65 = 3.32\%$
Hypothetical interest rate payable for that quarterly interest period:  $3.32\% \times 90/360 = 0.83\%$

Example 4: There were 54 Market Measure Business Days during the interest period on which the closing level of the Reference Index was greater than or equal to the Reference Index Strike Level:

Hypothetical N: 54
Hypothetical D: 65
Hypothetical annual rate:  $6.00\% \times 54/65 = 4.98\%$
Hypothetical interest rate payable for that quarterly interest period:  $4.98\% \times 90/360 = 1.25\%$

Example 5: The closing level of the Reference Index was greater than or equal to the Reference Index Strike Level on each Market Measure Business Day during the interest period:

Hypothetical N: 65
Hypothetical D: 65
Hypothetical annual rate:  $6.00\% \times 65/65 = 6.00\%$
Hypothetical interest rate payable for that quarterly interest period:  $6.00\% \times 90/360 = 1.50\%$

RISK FACTORS

There are important differences between the notes and a conventional debt security. An investment in the notes involves significant risks, including those listed below. You should carefully review the more detailed explanation of risks relating to the notes in the "Risk Factors" sections beginning on page S-8 of the accompanying product supplement RANGE-2, page S-5 of the MTN prospectus supplement, and page 8 of the prospectus identified below under "Additional Terms." We also urge you to consult your investment, legal, tax, accounting, and other advisors before you invest in the notes.

- If the closing level of the Reference Index on any Observation Date is greater than the Call Reference Level, the notes will be automatically called.
- It is possible that you may receive no interest, or only a limited amount of interest, for one, more than one or all interest periods.
- In no event will the annualized interest rate applicable to any quarterly interest period be greater than the applicable Base Rate.
- Your yield may be less than the yield on a conventional debt security of comparable maturity.
- If on the fifth Market Measure Business Day prior to a quarterly interest payment date, the closing level of the Reference Index is less than the Reference Index Strike Level, no interest will accrue on the notes for that day and the last four Market Measure Business Days of that interest period. This will be the case even if the closing level of the Reference Index is greater than or equal to the Reference Index Strike Level on one or more of those last four Market Measure Business Days.
- You must rely on your own evaluation of the merits of an investment linked to the Reference Index.
- We have included in the terms of the notes the costs of developing, hedging, and distributing them, and the price, if any, at which you may sell the notes in any secondary market transaction will likely be lower than the public offering price due to, among other things, the inclusion of these costs.
- Payments on the notes are subject to our credit risk, and changes in our credit ratings are expected to affect the value of the notes.
- A trading market is not expected to develop for the notes. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Incorporated ("MLPF&S") is not obligated to make a market for, or to repurchase, the notes.
- Standard & Poor's Financial Services LLC ("S&P" or the "Index Sponsor") may adjust the Reference Index in a way that affects its level, and the Index Sponsor has no obligation to consider your interests.
- You will have no rights as a holder of any of the securities represented by the Reference Index, you will have no rights to receive any of these securities, and you will not be entitled to dividends or other distributions by the issuers of these securities.
- While we or our affiliates may from time to time own shares of companies included in the Reference Index and, except to the extent that our common stock is included in the Reference Index, we do not control any company included in the Reference Index, and are not responsible for any disclosure made by any other company.
- If you attempt to sell the notes prior to maturity, their market value, if any, will be affected by various factors that interrelate in complex ways and their market value may be less than the principal amount.
- Purchases and sales by us and our affiliates of securities included in the Reference Index may affect your return.
- Our trading and hedging activities may create conflicts of interest with you.
- Our hedging activities may affect your return on the notes and their market value.
- Our business activities relating to the companies represented by the Reference Index may create conflicts of interest with you.
- There may be potential conflicts of interest involving the calculation agent. We have the right to appoint and remove the calculation agent.
- You should consider the tax consequences of investing in the notes. See "U.S. Federal Income Tax Summary" below and beginning on page S-26 of the accompanying product supplement RANGE-2.

SUPPLEMENT TO THE PLAN OF DISTRIBUTION—CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

MLPF&S, a broker-dealer subsidiary of BAC, is a member of the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority, Inc. (“FINRA”) and will participate as selling agent in the distribution of the notes. Accordingly, offerings of the notes will conform to the requirements of FINRA Rule 5121. The notes have been offered at varying public offering prices related to prevailing market prices. The purchase price of the notes to the selling agent is the price set forth on the cover page of this pricing supplement.

We will deliver the notes against payment therefor in New York, New York on a date that is greater than three business days following the pricing date. Under Rule 15c6-1 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, trades in the secondary market generally are required to settle in three business days, unless the parties to any such trade expressly agree otherwise. Accordingly, purchasers who wish to trade the notes more than three business days prior to the original issue date will be required to specify alternative settlement arrangements to prevent a failed settlement.

MLPF&S will sell the notes to other broker-dealers that will participate in the offering and that are not affiliated with us, at an agreed discount to the public offering price. Each of those broker-dealers may sell the notes to one or more additional broker-dealers. MLPF&S has informed us that these discounts may vary from dealer to dealer and that not all dealers will purchase or repurchase the notes at the same discount.

The settlement of the notes will occur on or about September 26, 2012.

MLPF&S may use this pricing supplement, and the accompanying product supplement, prospectus supplement and prospectus for offers and sales in secondary market transactions and market-making transactions in the notes. However, it is not obligated to engage in such secondary market transactions and/or market-making transactions. MLPF&S may act as principal or agent in these transactions, and any such sales will be made at prices related to prevailing market prices at the time of the sale.

All disclosures contained in this pricing supplement regarding the Reference Index, including, without limitation, its make up, method of calculation, and changes in its components, have been derived from publicly available sources. The information reflects the policies of, and is subject to change by the Index Sponsor. The Index Sponsor has no obligation to continue to publish, and may discontinue publication of, the Reference Index. The consequences of the Index Sponsor discontinuing publication of the Reference Index are discussed in the section entitled “Description of the Notes—Discontinuance of an Index” on page S-24 of the accompanying product supplement RANGE-2. None of us, the calculation agent, or MLPF&S accepts any responsibility for the calculation, maintenance, or publication of the Reference Index or any successor index.

The Reference Index is intended to provide an indication of the pattern of common stock price movement. The calculation of the level of the Reference Index is based on the relative value of the aggregate market value of the common stocks of 500 companies as of a particular time compared to the aggregate average market value of the common stocks of 500 similar companies during the base period of the years 1941 through 1943. As of August 31, 2012, 393 companies included in the Reference Index traded on the New York Stock Exchange, and 107 companies included in the Reference Index traded on The NASDAQ Stock Market. On August 31, 2012, the average market capitalization of the companies included in the Reference Index was $25.43 billion. As of that date, the largest component of the Reference Index had a market capitalization of $622.04 billion, and the smallest component of the Reference Index had a market capitalization of $1.01 billion.

S&P chooses companies for inclusion in the Reference Index with the aim of achieving a distribution by broad industry groupings that approximates the distribution of these groupings in the common stock population of its Stock Guide Database of over 10,000 companies, which S&P uses as an assumed model for the composition of the total market. Relevant criteria employed by S&P include the viability of the particular company, the extent to which that company represents the industry group to which it is assigned, the extent to which the market price of that company’s common stock generally is responsive to changes in the affairs of the respective industry and the market value and trading activity of the common stock of that company. Ten main groups of companies constitute the Reference Index, with the approximate percentage of the market capitalization of the Reference Index included in each group as of August 31, 2012 indicated in parentheses: Consumer Discretionary (11.00%); Consumer Staples (11.14%); Energy (11.20%); Financials (14.40%); Health Care (11.79%); Industrials (10.14%); Information Technology (20.28%); Materials (3.33%); Telecommunication Services (3.20%); and Utilities (3.52%). S&P from time to time, in its sole discretion, may add companies to, or delete companies from, the Reference Index to achieve the objectives stated above.

S&P calculates the Reference Index by reference to the prices of the constituent stocks of the Reference Index without taking account of the value of dividends paid on those stocks. As a result, the return on the notes will not reflect the return you would realize if you actually owned the Reference Index constituent stocks and received the dividends paid on those stocks.

Computation of the Reference Index

While S&P currently employs the following methodology to calculate the Reference Index, no assurance can be given that S&P will not modify or change this methodology in a manner that may affect the interest rate applicable to any quarterly interest period.

Historically, the market value of any component stock of the Reference Index was calculated as the product of the market price per share and the number of then outstanding shares of such component stock. In March 2005, S&P began shifting the Reference Index halfway from a market capitalization weighted formula to a float-adjusted formula, before moving the Reference Index to full float adjustment on September 16, 2005. S&P’s criteria for selecting stocks for the Reference Index did not change with the shift to float adjustment. However, the adjustment affects each company’s weight in the Reference Index.

Under float adjustment, the share counts used in calculating the Reference Index reflect only those shares that are available to investors, not all of a company’s outstanding shares. S&P defines three groups of shareholders whose holdings are subject to float adjustment:

- holdings by other publicly traded corporations, venture capital firms, private equity firms, strategic partners, or leveraged buyout groups;
- holdings by government entities, including all levels of government in the U.S. or foreign countries; and
- holdings by current or former officers and directors of the company, founders of the company, or family trusts of officers, directors, or founders, as well as holdings of trusts, foundations, pension funds, employee stock ownership plans, or other investment vehicles associated with and controlled by the company.

However, treasury stock, stock options, restricted shares, equity participation units, warrants, preferred stock, convertible stock, and rights are not part of the float. In cases where holdings in a group exceed 10% of the outstanding shares of a company, the holdings of that group are excluded from the float-adjusted count of shares to be used in the Reference Index calculation. Mutual funds, investment advisory firms, pension funds, or foundations not associated with the company and investment funds in insurance companies, shares of a U.S. company traded in Canada as “exchangeable shares,” shares that trust beneficiaries may buy or sell without difficulty or significant additional expense beyond typical brokerage fees, and, if a company has multiple classes of stock outstanding, shares in an unlisted or non-traded class if such shares are convertible by shareholders without undue delay and cost, are also part of the float.

For each stock, an investable weight factor (“IWF”) is calculated by dividing the available float shares, defined as the total shares outstanding less shares held in one or more of the three groups listed above where the group holdings exceed 10% of the outstanding shares, by the total shares outstanding. The float-adjusted Reference Index is then calculated by multiplying, for each stock in the Reference Index, the IWF, the price, and total number of shares outstanding, adding together the resulting amounts, and then dividing that sum by the index divisor. For companies with multiple classes of stock, S&P calculates the weighted average IWF for each stock using the proportion of the total company market capitalization of each share class as weights. The Reference Index is calculated using a base-weighted aggregate methodology. The level of the Reference Index reflects the total market value of all 500 component stocks relative to the base period of the years 1941 through 1943. An indexed number is used to represent the results of this calculation in order to make the level easier to work with and track over time. The actual total market value of the component stocks during the base period of the years 1941 through 1943 has been set to an indexed level of 10. This is often indicated by the notation 1941-43 = 10. In practice, the daily calculation of the Reference Index is computed by dividing the total market value of the component stocks by the “index divisor.” By itself, the index divisor is an arbitrary number. However, in the context of the calculation of the Reference Index, it serves as a link to the original base period level of the Reference Index. The index divisor keeps the Reference Index comparable over time and is the manipulation point for all adjustments to the Reference Index, which is index maintenance.

Reference Index Maintenance

Reference Index maintenance includes monitoring and completing the adjustments for company additions and deletions, share changes, stock splits, stock dividends, and stock price adjustments due to company restructuring or spinoffs. Some corporate actions, such as stock splits and stock dividends, require changes in the common shares outstanding and the stock prices of the companies in the Reference Index, and do not require index divisor adjustments.

To prevent the level of the Reference Index from changing due to corporate actions, corporate actions which affect the total market value of the Reference Index require an index divisor adjustment. By adjusting the index divisor for the change in market value, the level of the Reference Index remains constant and does not reflect the corporate actions of individual companies in the Reference Index. Index divisor adjustments are made after the close of trading and after the calculation of the Reference Index closing level.

Changes in a company’s shares outstanding of 5% or more due to mergers, acquisitions, public offerings, tender offers, Dutch auctions, or exchange offers are made as soon as reasonably possible. All other changes of 5% or more (due to, for example, company stock repurchases, private placements, redemptions, exercise of options, warrants, conversion of preferred stock, notes, debt, equity participation units, at the market offerings, or other recapitalizations) are made weekly and are announced on Wednesdays for implementation after the close of trading on the following Wednesday. Changes of less than 5% due to a company’s acquisition of another company in the Reference Index are made as soon as reasonably possible. All other changes of less than 5% are accumulated and made quarterly on the third Friday of March, June, September, and December, and are usually announced two to five days prior.

Changes in IWFs of more than five percentage points caused by corporate actions (such as merger and acquisition activity, restructurings, or spinoffs) will be made as soon as reasonably possible. Other changes in IWFs will be made annually when IWFs are reviewed.

The following table sets forth, in percentage terms, the month-end closing levels of the Reference Index obtained from Bloomberg L.P. for the period from January 2007 through August 2012.

Historical Performance of the Index

The historical data on the Reference Index presented above is not necessarily indicative of the future performance of the Reference Index or what the value of the notes may be. The historical data sets forth only month-end closing levels of the Reference Index. Interest accruing on the notes is determined in reference to daily closing levels of the Reference Index. Any month-end trend in the level of the Reference Index is not necessarily indicative of the intra-month trends. Furthermore, any historical upward or downward trend in the level of the Reference Index during any period set forth above is not an indication that the level of the Reference Index is more or less likely to increase or decrease at any time over the term of the notes.

Before investing in the notes, you should consult publicly available sources for the levels of the Reference Index. The generally unsettled international environment and related uncertainties, including the risk of terrorism, may result in the Reference Index and financial markets generally exhibiting greater volatility than in earlier periods.

U.S. FEDERAL INCOME TAX SUMMARY

The following general description of the material U.S. federal income tax considerations applicable to the acquisition, ownership, and disposition of the notes is based upon the advice of Morrison & Foerster LLP, our tax counsel. The following discussion is not exhaustive of all possible tax considerations. This summary is based upon the Code, regulations promulgated under the Code by the U.S. Treasury (including proposed and temporary regulations), rulings, current administrative interpretations and official pronouncements of the IRS, and judicial decisions, all as currently in effect and all of which are subject to differing interpretations or to change, possibly with retroactive effect. No assurance can be given that the IRS would not assert, or that a court would not sustain, a position contrary to any of the tax consequences described below.

This summary is directed solely to holders that, except as otherwise specifically noted, will purchase the notes upon original issuance and will hold the notes as capital assets within the meaning of Section 1221 of the Code, which generally means property held for investment. This summary assumes that the issue price of the notes, as determined for U.S. federal income tax purposes, equals the principal amount thereof.

The following summary is not complete and is subject to the qualifications and limitations set forth in the discussion under “U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations” beginning on page 62 of the accompanying prospectus and in the discussion under “U.S. Federal Income Tax Summary” beginning on page S-26 of the accompanying product supplement, which you should carefully review prior to investing in the notes. The following section supplements and, to the extent inconsistent with, supersedes the discussions of U.S. federal income taxation in the accompanying prospectus and product supplement. It applies only to those U.S. Holders and Non-U.S. Holders who are not excluded from the discussion of U.S. federal income taxation in the accompanying prospectus.

You should consult your own tax advisor concerning the U.S. federal income tax consequences to you of acquiring, owning, and disposing of the notes, as well as any tax consequences arising under the laws of any state, local, foreign, or other tax jurisdiction and the possible effects of changes in U.S. federal or other tax laws.

Tax Characterization of the Notes

No statutory, judicial, or administrative authority directly addresses the characterization of the notes or securities similar to the notes for U.S. federal income tax purposes. As a result, certain aspects of the U.S. federal income tax consequences of an investment in the notes are not certain. We intend to treat the notes as “contingent payment debt instruments” for U.S. federal income tax purposes, subject to taxation under the “noncontingent bond method,” and the balance of this discussion assumes that this characterization is proper and will be respected.

U.S. Holders

If the notes are properly characterized as contingent payment debt instruments for U.S. federal income tax purposes, such notes generally will be subject to U.S. Treasury regulations governing contingent payment debt instruments. Under those regulations, and as further described under “U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations—Taxation of Debt Securities—Consequences to U.S. Holders—Debt Securities Subject to Contingences” in the accompanying prospectus and under “U.S. Federal Income Tax Summary—U.S. Holders—Notes Treated as Contingent Payment Debt Instruments” in the accompanying product supplement, a U.S. Holder will be required to report OID or interest income based on a “comparable yield” and a “projected payment schedule,” established by us for determining interest accruals and adjustments with respect to a note. A U.S. Holder of a note generally will be required to include in income OID in excess of actual cash payments received for certain taxable years.

The following table is based upon a projected payment schedule and a comparable yield equal to 4.4387% per annum (compounded quarterly), that we established for the notes, and shows the amounts of ordinary income from a note that an initial U.S. Holder that holds the note until maturity and pays taxes on a calendar year basis should be required to report each calendar year.

2027	$11.0968	$11.0968	$1,011.0968

You should be aware that these amounts are not calculated or provided for any purposes other than the determination of a U.S. Holder's interest accruals and adjustments with respect to the notes for U.S. federal income tax purposes. By providing the table above and the projected payment schedule, we make no representations regarding the actual amounts of interest payments on the notes.

Upon a sale, exchange, retirement, or other disposition of the notes, a U.S. Holder generally will recognize taxable gain or loss equal to the difference between the amount realized and that holder's tax basis in the notes. A U.S. Holder's tax basis in the notes generally will equal the cost of the notes, increased by the amount of OID previously accrued by the holder for the notes and reduced by any projected payments for previous periods on the notes. A U.S. Holder generally will treat any gain as interest income, and will treat any loss as ordinary loss to the extent of the excess of previous interest inclusions over the total negative adjustments previously taken into account as ordinary losses, and the balance as long-term or short-term capital loss depending upon the U.S. Holder's holding period for the notes. The deductibility of capital losses by a U.S. Holder is subject to limitations.

This opinion is given as of the date hereof and is limited to the federal laws of the United States, the laws of the State of New York and the Delaware General Corporation Law (including the statutory provisions, all applicable provisions of the Delaware Constitution and reported judicial decisions interpreting the foregoing). In addition, this opinion is subject to the assumption that the trustee’s certificate of authentication of the Master Note has been manually signed by one of the trustee’s authorized officers and to customary assumptions about the trustee’s authorization, execution and delivery of the Senior Indenture, the validity, binding nature and enforceability of the Senior Indenture with respect to the trustee, the legal capacity of natural persons, the genuineness of signatures, the authenticity of all documents submitted to McGuireWoods LLP as originals, the conformity to original documents of all documents submitted to McGuireWoods LLP as photocopies thereof, the authenticity of the originals of such copies and certain factual matters, all as stated in the letter of McGuireWoods LLP dated March 30, 2012, which has been filed as an exhibit to BAC’s Registration Statement relating to the notes filed with the SEC on March 30, 2012.
