Commodity Hedging Disruption Event Redemption

In connection with the issuance of Notes to you, the following section will supersede and replace the section “Description of the Notes—Commodity Hedging Disruption Event Redemption” set forth on pages S-25 and S-26 of product supplement CLN-3, dated April 4, 2012.

If a Commodity Hedging Disruption Event (as defined below) occurs, we will have the right, but not the obligation, to redeem the Notes (in whole, and not in part) by providing written notice of our election to redeem the Notes to the Trustee, as promptly as possible and in no event later than two London business days following the day on which the Commodity Hedging Disruption Event has occurred. The Trustee will give notice of that Commodity Hedging Disruption Event to the holders of the Notes in accordance with the Senior Indenture. Each notice will specify the Early Redemption Amount on the Commodity Redemption Date (as defined below) and include a brief description of the Commodity Hedging Disruption Event. If we redeem the Notes, we will pay the holders of the Notes, for each $1,000 in principal amount, the Early Redemption Amount on the Commodity Redemption Date.

For purposes of calculating the Early Redemption Amount payable on the Commodity Redemption Date, the Funding Amount will be an amount equal to accrued and unpaid interest, if any, to the Commodity Redemption Date, and the Valuation Date on which the Ending Value will be determined will be the second Index Business Day immediately succeeding the date we deliver notice to the Trustee for delivery to holders of the Notes of our election to redeem the Notes; provided that if a Market Disruption Event occurs on that Valuation Date, the Ending Value will be determined according to the Ending Value Market Disruption Calculation. See “—Market Disruption Events.” The Early Redemption Amount will be payable to holders of the Notes on the fifth business day following the Valuation Date (the “Commodity Redemption Date”).

A “Commodity Hedging Disruption Event” will occur if we, after using commercially reasonable efforts, are unable to either (i) acquire, establish, reestablish, substitute, maintain, unwind or dispose of all or any part of any transaction or asset we deem necessary to hedge the risk of performing our commodity-related obligations with respect to the Notes (including, without limitation, any commodity-related payments on the Notes), or (ii) realize, recover or remit the proceeds of any such transaction or asset; where such inability arises or results from the adoption of, or any change in, any law, regulation, rule or order applicable to us or our counterparties, or the promulgation of, or any change in the interpretation by any court, tribunal, or regulatory authority with competent authority or any relevant trading system or exchange facility, of any such applicable law, rule, regulation or order, in each case occurring on or after the pricing date.

Market Disruption Events

The following definition will supersede and replace the definition of “Market Disruption Event” set forth on page S-26 of product supplement CLN-3.

A “Market Disruption Event” means one or more of the following events, as determined by the Calculation Agent:

(1) a material limitation, suspension, or disruption of trading in one or more Underlying Index components which results in a failure by the exchange on which each applicable Underlying Index component is traded to report an exchange published settlement price for such contract on the day on which such event occurs or any succeeding day on which it continues;

(2) the exchange published settlement price for any Underlying Index component is a “limit price,” which means that the exchange published settlement price for such contract for a day has increased or decreased from the previous day’s exchange published settlement price by the maximum amount permitted under applicable exchange rules;

- (3) failure by the applicable exchange or other price source to announce or publish the exchange published settlement price for any Underlying Index component; or
- (4) a suspension of trading in one or more Underlying Index components, for which the trading does not resume at least 10 minutes prior to the scheduled or rescheduled closing time.

Starting Value Market Disruption Calculation

The following definition will supersede and replace the definition of “Starting Value Market Disruption Calculation” set forth on pages S-26 and S-27 of product supplement CLN-3.

If a Market Disruption Event occurs on the pricing date, the Calculation Agent will establish an initial level for the Underlying Index (the “Initial Underlying Index Value”) and the “Starting Value” for that Underlying Index using the following “Starting Value Market Disruption Calculation”:

- (1) With respect to each commodity or futures contract, the value of which is tracked by the Underlying Index and which is not affected by the Market Disruption Event (an “Unaffected Commodity Component”), both the Initial Underlying Index Value and the Starting Value will be based on the exchange published settlement price of such Unaffected Commodity Component on the pricing date.
- (2) With respect to each commodity or futures contract, the value of which is tracked by the Underlying Index and which is affected by a Market Disruption Event (an “Affected Commodity Component”):
  - a. The Calculation Agent will establish the Initial Underlying Index Value on the pricing date based on (i) the above-referenced settlement price of each Unaffected Commodity Component and (ii) the last exchange published settlement price for each Affected Commodity Component on the pricing date.
  - b. The Calculation Agent will adjust the Initial Underlying Index Value for purposes of determining the Starting Value based on the exchange published settlement price of each Affected Commodity Component on the first Index Business Day following the pricing date on which no Market Disruption Event occurs with respect to such Affected Commodity Component. In the event that a Market Disruption Event occurs with respect to any Affected Commodity Component on the first, second, and third scheduled Index Business Day following the pricing date, the Calculation Agent (not later than the close of business in New York, New York on the third scheduled Index Business Day following the pricing date) will estimate the price of such Affected Commodity Component used to determine the Starting Value in a manner that the Calculation Agent considers commercially reasonable under the circumstances.
  - c. The final term sheet will set forth the Initial Underlying Index Value, a brief statement of the facts relating to the establishment of the Initial Underlying Index Value (including a description of the relevant Market Disruption Event(s)), and the Starting Value.
- (3) The Calculation Agent will determine the Initial Underlying Index Value by reference to the exchange published settlement prices or other prices determined in clauses (1) and (2) above using the then current method for calculating the Underlying Index. The exchange on which a commodity or futures contract, the value of which is tracked by the Underlying Index, is traded for purposes of the above definition means the exchange used to value such contract for the calculation of the Underlying Index.

CERTAIN U.S. FEDERAL INCOME TAX MATTERS

You have informed us that you have made certain representations to the Internal Revenue Service (“IRS”) in connection with requesting and obtaining a private letter ruling from the IRS to the extent that income and gain arising from certain notes that provide commodity exposure to the holder constitute “qualifying income” under Section 851(b)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (“Code”). The representations you have made to the IRS include the following:

- (1) The issuer of the Notes will receive payment in full of the purchase price of the Notes substantially contemporaneously with the delivery of the Notes;
- (2) You, while holding the Notes, will not be required to make any payment to the issuer of the Notes in addition to the purchase price paid for the Notes, whether as margin, settlement payment, or otherwise, during the life of the Notes or at maturity;
- (3) The issuer of the Notes is not subject by the terms of the instrument to mark-to-market margining requirements of the Commodities Exchange Act, 7 U.S.C. §2, as amended (the “CEA”); and
- (4) The Notes are not marketed as a contract of sale of a commodity for future delivery (or option on such a contract) subject to the CEA.

We believe, to the best of our knowledge, that the Notes will satisfy each of these requirements.

We note that private letter rulings cannot be relied upon by any taxpayer other than the taxpayer to whom the private letter ruling is addressed. Accordingly, there can be no assurance that the IRS would treat the Notes similarly to those addressed in any private letter rulings or that the IRS would not change its position as reflected in any private letter rulings. You are urged to consult your own tax advisor regarding all tax consequences of the purchase, ownership and disposition of the Notes, including whether income or gain arising from the Notes would be treated as “qualifying income” under Section 851(b)(2) of the Code.
