MERRILL LYNCH MARKET-LINKED INVESTMENTS

Market-Linked Investments are unsecured debt obligations of an issuing company that are different from conventional bonds. The return and value of Market-Linked Investments are based on the performance of one or more underlying market measures. These market measures may include equities or equity indices, commodities or commodity indices, currencies and interest rates. Market-Linked Investments are designed to meet specific investment objectives.

This Market-Linked Investments Monthly Guidebook describes certain preliminary terms of the Market-Linked Investments – as well as those of certain other notes, which are not Market-Linked Investments - offered during the month. It is not a preliminary prospectus and does not contain all of the material terms of, or risks related to, the Market-Linked Investments and other notes offered. You should read the preliminary term sheet for the specific Market-Linked Investment and the accompanying product supplement, prospectus supplement and prospectus and, in the case of the other notes, the preliminary term sheet and the accompanying prospectus supplement and prospectus (collectively referred to as the “preliminary offering documents”) before investing.

The following pages contain hyperlinks to the preliminary offering documents for the Market-Linked Investments and other notes that we are offering this month. FACTORS TO CONSIDER WHEN PURCHASING MARKET-LINKED INVESTMENTS

Market-Linked Investments (“MLIs”) may not be suitable for all investors. MLIs differ in terms of complexity and have different payout characteristics, risks and rewards. You should understand the characteristics, risks and rewards of each MLI as well as those of the linked market measure (i.e. equity, commodity, currency, interest rates) before making a decision to invest. Prior to investing, you should carefully read the related preliminary offering documents, which contain a detailed explanation of the terms of the specific offering as well as the risks, tax treatment and other relevant information about the investment and the applicable issuer. Additionally, you should consult your investment, accounting, legal and tax advisors before investing.

Risk considerations

- Depending on the terms of the MLI and the performance of the linked market measure, you can lose some or all of your principal investment.
- Unlike conventional fixed or floating rate bonds, MLIs generally do not provide interest or coupon payments. Some MLIs may also cap or limit the upside participation in the linked market measure.
- Your return on the MLI may be less than the yield you could earn by owning a conventional fixed or floating rate debt security of comparable maturity. Also, your return, if any, may be less than a comparable investment directly in the linked market measure.
- Any payments due on MLIs, including Market Downside Protected MLIs, are subject to the credit risk of the applicable issuer. If the issuer goes bankrupt or is unable to make payments on its obligations, you could lose all of your investment. You should not invest in the MLI if you are not willing to assume the credit risk of the applicable issuer.
- The price at which you may be able to sell your MLI prior to maturity in the secondary market may be lower than the price you paid for it, due to a number of factors, including changes in the linked market measure’s performance, the creditworthiness of the issuer and the initial costs of developing, hedging and distributing the MLIs.
- You may not be able to sell your MLIs in the secondary market, and the issuer or Merrill Lynch is not obligated to purchase them from you.
- The issuers, the selling agents, and their respective affiliates, may engage in business, hedging, and trading activities in the notes and the linked market measure, which may affect the market value and return of the notes and may create conflicts of interest with you. Additionally, there may be potential conflicts of interest involving the calculation agent for the notes.
- The U.S. federal income tax treatment for Market-Linked Investments will depend upon a variety of factors, including the structure of the specific investment and can be uncertain. You should consult your tax advisor before investing in the notes.
