ITEM 8.01. Other Events.

On March 19, 2021, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System (the “FRB”), the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (the “FDIC”), and the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (the “OCC”, and together with the FRB and the FDIC, the “Banking Agencies”) announced that the temporary change to the supplementary leverage ratio (“SLR”) for bank holding companies and depository institutions issued in 2020 will expire as scheduled on March 31, 2021.

As of December 31, 2020, Bank of America Corporation (“Bank of America” or the “Company”) reported an SLR of 7.2%; excluding the temporary change, the SLR would have been approximately 6.2%, which is 1.2%, or $39 billion, in excess of the 5% SLR regulatory minimum required for the Company by the FRB. The Company’s lead depository institution, Bank of America, N.A., did not opt to take advantage of the SLR relief offered by the OCC.

The SLR ratio has historically not been a constraint for Bank of America as the Company has remained above the minimum ratio since its establishment by the Banking Agencies. Bank of America does not expect the expiration of the temporary relief announced today to affect the Company’s ability to service customers or constrain the Company’s capital return plans to shareholders.

Forward-Looking Statements

Certain statements contained in this Current Report on Form 8-K may constitute “forward-looking” statements within the meaning of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. These forward-looking statements represent the current expectations, plans or forecasts of Bank of America based on available information. Forward-looking statements can be identified by the fact that they do not relate strictly to historical or current facts. These statements often use words like “expects,” “anticipates,” “believes,” “estimates,” “targets,” “intends,” “plans,” “predict,” “goal” and other similar expressions or future or conditional verbs such as “will,” “may,” “might,” “should,” “would” and “could.” Forward-looking statements speak only as of the date they are made, and Bank of America undertakes no obligation to update any forward-looking statement to reflect the impact of circumstances or events that arise after the date the forward-looking statement was made.

Forward-looking statements represent Bank of America’s current expectations, plans or forecasts of its future results, revenues, expenses, efficiency ratio, capital measures, and future business and economic conditions more generally, and other future matters. These statements are not guarantees of its future results or performance and involve certain known and unknown risks, uncertainties and assumptions that are difficult to predict and are often beyond the Bank of America’s control. Actual outcomes and results may differ materially from those expressed in, or implied by, any forward-looking statements. You should not place undue reliance on any forward-looking statement and should consider all of the uncertainties and risks discussed under Item 1A. “Risk Factors” of Bank of America’s Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2020 and in any of the Bank of America’s other subsequent Securities and Exchange Commission filings.
